B. Course Objectives and Learning Outcomes

1. Course Description:

This is a three hours credit course offered to bachelor degree students. This course on Postcolonial literature will explore colonialism and anti-colonial resistance through the cultural legacies and literary imprints that they leave. It will also be an introduction to the specialized field of postcolonial studies which started emerging during the 1980s and ever since then has come to occupy a significant position within the various humanities departments across the world. It is hoped that this course will enable students to competently navigate the complex maze of theoretical terms and concepts that characterize postcolonial studies and savour the wonderful variety and richness of the literature that is today classified under the rubric of postcolonialism.

2. Course Main Objective

The objective of the course is to enable students to: discuss, and analyze colonial and postcolonial texts, to know how race, class, gender, history, and identity are presented and problematised in the literary texts and to have an understanding of the relationship between Great Britain (and implicitly the West) and nations that were once colonized
